sol 1064 to 1093 starts with view of the rover tracks which is a great way to assess the overall moisture content of the substrate qualitatively. The evidence for a culturally modified sediment is literally scratchy for these few sols/ But the evidence is there nonetheless with some carvings that are striking. At 1076 through sol 1079 the steep banks of the canal are seen carved into the shoreline bedrock.

Sol 1093 has some sediment that has been marked with some areas that have been carefully bordered. With straight scratch lines. The small glazed artifact is perceptible.

AT sol 1097 is an ecumenical carving that a clear insight into the Vis-Eaudent collective and their similarities to us. IN this engraving the Vis-Eaudents are seen interacting with themselves in a peaceful and somewhat celebratory way. The images portray the them as relatively nature friendly and suggestively the ruling class at the outpost.

The area from sol 1097 to 1108 is rich with modified rock that highlights more ecumenical engravings

One such innocent engraving shows a detailed scene of the Vis-Eaudent interacting with humans, forest creatures and a broad assortment of simians. Comparatively these carvings are without angry faces.

Sol 1108 has more to offer with a scene from the mythologies of the Ancient Greeks with Zeus, Hera and many other celebratory figures including Pan around a fire with Zeus dancing in an animal hide with antlers. The carving is a clear marker of a past lineage to a human population on Mars. There are also some detailed carvings that are mostly indecipherable and many engraved figures adorn the rock walls. Sol 1109 is more of the same with an engraving that could stand some analysis. When I see these carvings I imagine that some of the most detailed ones where made by the same artist. Other engravings such as Nyad and Typhon and the crucified man and more like clay models crafted by smooth hands. Where are the upcoming engravings such as GIRL AND GUARD are more multimedia sketches into rock. Thus many artistic methods where undertaken to create the carvings and mostly likely were made by separate artists with the same story to tell. As to exactly why there stories with such ecumenical importance in relation to our planet are at this specific location on Mars is intriguing while the concentration of administrated removal of carved images at this place for whatever reason is dubious. If not androgenic/ sol 1108 area is close to the primordial riverbed with large pieces of fractured rock.

The rover skips across the riverbed and heads across some flats that begin to climb steadily south to what is an area that I call the foot of Fury. As it is in the shadow of a large mountain with a fortified summit that is grand architecture to behold. The castle on top is reached by a broad steep causeways that stretches up the shoulder of Mount Fury. At the top is a vast chasm that is crossed by a huge viaduct with 9 immense arches that reach hundreds of feet in height. , Behind the viaduct is a dark area that is presumably a massive cave complex atop the summit of Fury.

Sol 1119 and sol 1120 are airborne phenomena. First are the usual UAPs including the coloured orbs and metal triangle with lights and a methane bubble which I noticed frequently in the past that I would call common. It is hypothesized here that off-gassing from subterranean sources could produce a slow rising bubble of gasses that rises to the outer atmosphere.

From sol 1121 to sol 1134 we see more evidence of trauma in the form of plaques suspected to be defunct networks .

At sol 1135 we see some unique artifacts of small hardware pieces such as an orifice and some small machined nuts lay atop the sand. The sizes of these could be estimated as at less than a centimeter in length. It defies the description so I will state it as such truthfully.

Two sols further we see some engraved letters in strings on the wall and at sol 1138 another ecumenical engraving of a dragon face laughing at an Adam and Eve like duo beside a caduceus with a sickle moon on top and surrounded by snakes. The dragon is laughing as if mocking the humans and there are a ring of many others around them who act as witnesses possibly also in judgment of them.

The carving at sol 1138 plus the upcoming carving at sol station 1143 are stand alone [pieces that if properly assessed reveal many clues about previous life on Mars and Earth.

Also of mention in this area proximal to these priceless sources are markings that we made subsequent to the creation of the artworks, as if by an explorer who found them and cleared them of sand and debris and scored the substrate around the subject to make it more easy to find when returning or to make its presence known to any others who may venture there.

Sol 1143 has signs that indicate humans there who resembled paleo Amerindians.

Sol 1148 is an area that includes many carved long broken hollow and relatively straight tube that could've served one of many purposes including an artillery installation or maybe a tall fountain. The area appears to be laden with water ice, and features in the rock including carvings, letters in the form of verse, culturally modified rock that is stylized. Sol 1148 also has a view of some buildings, a tower a pair of domes on top a white dome close by and a faint megalith that looked like an image of Hathor on its face.

At sol 1150 sol 1153 and sol 1158 we see more rock that is modified in a variety of ways, and at sol 1167 we see some beads and the top fraction as observed at sol station 1179 shows the ejecta is a pink ash like residue.

We have some faintly scratched rock at sol 1180 and at sol 1188 there is a metallic looking model of a stalk with a small head of a flower,

Also at sol 1188 there is an interesting concretion that includes a gem studded matrix of a white substrate beside a similar feature with magnetite embedded in place of the gemstones, The area at large has a lot of small debris that looks like shattered wood. There is also what resembles a dish with its swim bladder outside of its mouth.

At sol 1198 we see a hoof print that matches other hoof prints and remains of an antelope found previously.

At sol 1203 and 1207 we see two similar examples where signs or morphological details and artifacts are intermixed with the dissociated remains of the cataclysm.

At sol 1210 we see some more verse, This verse is arranged in rectangles and is mostly indecipherable. A ribbon is viable with marks on it and there is remnant of an advanced material with a noticeable bi-layer.

Sol 1218 has more evidence of continued surveillance from above.

Sol 1219 has a plaque of a dissociated cadaver on the top fraction, and sol 1221 has some delicate wall carvings and some peculiar impressions of circles that stir the imagination.

Sol 1228 shows the substrate under some loose tile that includes a patch of cured grout like adhesive under the missing tile. At sol 1231 there is a fragment of the cranial vault in the substrate, At sol 1233 there are engravings of a woman with a mysterious figure at her right shoulder that looks like a ghost. This carving is very small.

At sol 1234 there is an artifact partly buried in the sand,

From sol 1235 to sol 1241 we see patterns carved in the wall, some identifying marks a missing artifact some evidence of chipped rock and more bone fragments.

Sol 1239 is the reference frame that clearly shows a multitude of piles and some residual concretions that could've been footprints for structures. There is also laser marks in the rock from Percy marks in the sediment, missing structures in the rock and more piles meet us at sol 1245 and the road is unremarkable until sol 1276 which shows us some grooves that could've been mechanical in origin, It is unclear whether the sand is sifted with a blade or by some other technological means that would produce consistent wave firms in the sand such as these.

Sol 1277 is yet another of these ecumenical wall carvings with a clear scene that has been removed. The scene is that of a knight in Armour fighting a winged being with a sword and shield. The creature is somewhat monstrous and the knight is locked in fierce battle. sol 1227 also has some suspected smooth polished gemstones laying in the sand while sol 1289 and sol 1293 have a very large smooth slab of granite like rock and some marks in the substrate that don't look natural.

Sol 1301 has some signs of dissociated cadavers some carved figurines and script engraved in the wall, an incredible boulder with a face with a high crown and other shapes that are suspect.

At sol 1302 there is a fish with the teeth visible. At sol is also a pair of helmed characters in the top of the frame with helmets that are shaped forward similar to a Phrygian style helmet.

Sol 1303 gives a nice perspective into the slope strata and some bordered script while at 1310 we see another representation of a tall headdress and a round item that could be a similar device to the Antikythera device found aboard a shipwreck in the Peloponnese island chain.

Sol 1310 also features an example of a 3 fingered hand. Sol 1314 shows us the rovers tracks followed by the mark of Poseidon at 1315 with an embossed trident that is no longer visible.

Sol 1323 shows the radiused corner of a tech object that is partly buried in the sand.

Sol 1338 has remains of what is possibly a surrogate mother with an child from the higher caste defending against an ogre. The face of the monster is shown in the following frame.

Sol `1338 show us an example of a straight edge cut into he rock and finally the scroll concludes with a black slab of rock.
